Werneth Golf Club
1909

This once semi-moorland course has been modified over the last 100 years and now boasts several tree lined fairways and many added bunkers, providing a challenging but enjoyable test. The course is set in 62 acres of land which probably makes it one of the smallest 18 hole courses in acreage in the North West. However don't be fooled by the size, with its small greens and narrow fairways it is still a testing course. After a not too exhausting round you can retire to the clubhouse where a warm Werneth welcome awaits. Renowned for its friendliness and relaxed atmosphere in the area, you can enjoy a bar snack or meal, together with a drink from a well stocked bar.
